Introductory

due to delays in the completion of the current video contribution of Mr. Laurent as well as the singular necessity to keep a special publishing timeframe for this video in order to generate quantum-mechanically emerging interactions from cognitive awareness, which progressively serve the avoidance, suspension and/or dissolution of threatening event variants, Mr. Laurent sees himself forced to transmit to you already now, in this short contribution, the complete content of his video, which is still in preparation. Regarding the content (in the German original video): Primarily, the text contains details on the possible recombinations of the current crisis and danger situations and the resulting process variants that will be used in the medium and long term to reconstruct or rebuild global power structures. In the global theater play already underway, the freedom and truth fighters publicized by social media will also play a stronger role from now on. These false alternatives operating globally are supposed to guide populations during times of catastrophe to find more or less a proclaimed happy conclusion in a new order (predominantly for countries in the southern hemisphere), or to dare a confident political new beginning in a pre-industrial state (for populations in the northern hemisphere, after the geophysical event). To read and understand the text [in the German original video]: This impression stems from the absence of reference inserts, photos or videos that could provide substantially more insight into what is being said. However, the appearance of difficulties in understanding the text due to the lack of inserts is rather an exception. Only additions to the content and additional information are conveyed in the video itself. The extracted text also contains no headings and subdivisions, which we could not create due to time constraints. Due to the frequently overlapping content of individual subject areas, additional provision must be made. Because of the often overlapping content of individual topics, additional headings would have hindered rather than facilitated the reading flow. After this step, the text extracted from the video is presented in a scrolling sequence of 115 individual images. The image changes every two seconds, so that one can easily pause each setting and read the related information. For orientation within the script, the current page number is always displayed in the upper right corner next to the image section. Thank you for your interest and commitment.

Sincerely, Eurasia Couple and Alexander Laurent¹

Dear viewers, time is running out. If you have seen the interviews with Alexander Laurent in full, you know how power structures look like, what the various methods of influence and manipulation are, and how opinions and opposites or opposition are created and how people are controlled, both on a small and large scale. The interviews revealed that it is not only the money-grabbing, vile and/or indifferent elites who nefariously rule the world, as is generally stated in the alternative media in a profligate and almost taken for granted manner – but that at the end of the control chain there are completely different and hidden powers; digitized powers that, in order to achieve their long-term goals: control, command and – if necessary for the subsequent writing of history – plan to sacrifice their subordinate and publicly visible rulers and their major and minor elite lackeys, also planing to let them fight and destroy each other if needed, so that they can comfortably control and completely dominate the entire course of the world; these are hidden digital entities with absolute power.

A power that regulates economies and finances around the world; influences cultures, religions and philosophies; determines science, progress and developmental trends; influences media, opinions, views, historiography and educational systems, a power that influences every state, every policy, legislation and military. As viewers of the interviews, you learned why this happens, what the long-term goal is and why all these spheres of influence, apparatuses and institutions with their goals, beliefs and plans fit together so perfectly. Why ideological synchronization prevails and why even the seeming opponents of these cartels are so perfectly intertwined in the staging. Why everything is subject to absolute control. A control in which nothing is left to chance so that an all-encompassing paradigm shift can be initiated on Earth. Enacted through the perfect coordination and polarization of all the actors, spheres of influence and groups involved worldwide, through which vast destruction and decomposition will take place so that the entire way of life on a social, physical and psychological level can or should be realigned in the future.

The occult rulers and handlers of our world have at their disposal a vast and almost invincible apparatus of manipulation and infiltration, the deceitfulness, diversity and scope of which cannot be remotely imagined and the average person sometimes is not even remotely able to guess at. Even in the smallest areas that do not appear to be occupied by infiltration, their power is universal and unlimited. The modus operandi of their infiltration, the subsequent redirection, adaptation, and spiritual and intellectual delusion, the methods of their instigation, channeling, irritation, and division are so profound, so pervasive – they would be so demotivating and unbelievable even to most awake people – that Alexander Laurent, out of indulgence and complacency toward the lackeys within the alternative media scene used to disrupt the resistance of the people in revolt, still does not speak of them more specifically or even name them.

But at the same time, Mr. Laurent does not want to prevent the possibility of already being able to perceive the hidden accomplices of this system on this system's own, describing their classic spectrum of infiltration and manipulation. This does not mean threatening those lackeys or endangering them, but trying to change their minds through their free will; that is, to really and authentically defend the needs demands formulated by the men themselves. In the past few months of crisis, true alternative media producers have obviously been actively and sacrificially engaged in structural resistance and counter-resistance on social media in order to escape the gloomy situation ahead. True alternative media have thus contributed to inform you competently, honestly and within their means.

While instead, through the lackeys infiltrated in the alternative media, a show of resistance was able to be staged, by which nothing changed in the status quo of our situation. They operate in large numbers, well camouflaged and cleverly networked, in all the social media existing in the world; In this way, precious time is wasted with heroic propagandized demonstrations, childish actionism and distraction. On social media there even seemed to be a prevailing opinion that with entertainment of excitement or indignation – here and there accompanied by angry and threatening expletives, gallows humor and/or the expectation of a redeeming political savior – the worsening of the situation would somehow change. But the very promises and slogans repeatedly made by the alternative media that something would change or had already changed as a result of months of sustained activism fueled a growing suspicion in more and more people that some or even many of the established alternative media would never be interested in changing our situation by their efforts.

That although they were supposed to warn us against injection during this risky situation – so that they can continue to act credibly, competently and authentically now and in the future – mostly by fundamentally trying to dissuade us from our own actions, from effective action and from the will for genuine resistance. Alternative media are even widely installed and exclusively there to channel the energy of recalcitrant individuals, to give a sense of hope, change and resistance to worried people, to keep them calm until a certain X day. A perfectly calibrated simulation of resistance in which the fake alternative media can then present themselves to their viewers, when the foreseeable catastrophe occurs and people all over the world are in revolt against the authorities and initiators of genocide and economic chaos, as credible fighters for goodness and justice; as heroes, saviors and rescuers who can eventually be used as political and social remodelers; also, to suggest that the old powers have been defeated and that good has now prevailed.

A theatrical performance that the hidden digital entities of this world always stage to rebuild their power structures, to re-establish their dominance and control, and to be able to successfully conceal it once again. As a result of the sharply contradictory behavior of many alternative media outlets during the crisis, many critical viewers have noted that the manipulative mission of the fake alternative media is not only to block rebels with ideas of resistance and questionable solution concepts, but rather that the image of the alternative media scene constructed over many years and deliberately kept ambiguous – the many absurd speculations, outlandish fables and emotional overcompensations it contains – a large part of the mainstream audience is also systematically prevented from dealing objectively and more insistently with the issues that need to be discussed – completely independent of all media influences.

This deliberately organized imbalance of the faux-alternative media have successfully prevented mainstream viewers from departing from the levels of representation and promises proclaimed by the mainstream. Alternative media have been deliberately portrayed over the years as a distasteful image by which the mainstream viewer could and should associate alternative media or the resistance only as conspiracy-carrying lunatics, racists in disguise, miracle healers of dubious fame, and/or delusional esotericists. This lack of seriousness, differentiation, and objectivity of the alternative media, which is repeatedly emphasized by the mainstream, their dubious, detached, and sometimes even fraudulent appearance, eventually caused mainstream viewers to remain confident in their worldview, which ended up destroying the development of powerful and real resistance.

A resistance that could have developed from the masses of mainstream consumers; that would have had the power to stop the population reduction targeted by the occult powers on our planet. Behind the many negative mainstream news stories about the alternative media many alternative media viewers, even today, suspect nothing, no double standards, only the clear discrediting of the alternative media. After all, one can clearly see how alternative media formats and media creators are ruthlessly caught in the mainstream's crossfire, how they are prejudiced and distorted. But actually a perfectly coordinated action: controlled by the secret societies of a perfidious media manipulation and staging network.

The high level, class and intelligence of this network of alternative distraction and decomposition become evident when this machinery has to dispel emerging doubts about its authenticity or functioning, with, for example, a virtuoso spectacle of disagreement – a credibly performed spectacle of the danger of division between alleged truthers, enlighteners and freedom fighters, each with different approaches and priorities, and one enjoying greater, the other less sympathy among awake viewers; as a concerted show of disagreement, mutual accusations and incompatibility of cooperation. Always supported by paid network trolls and agents, who act as fans and supporters, even as critics or hosts if necessary, in order to present the show in a rounded and convincing way to the outside world. Such shows – which are usually arranged and supplemented with real alternative mediators – serve and have served in this crisis primarily to compensate for the seemingly prevailing powerlessness, rivalry, and inability to act of the alternative mediators.

This has been used to credibly convey to viewers that the alternative media are too weak, poorly planned, and overburdened in their approach to the state and the system. Shows that are also there so that viewers, in the course of collective solidarity and indulgence, will refrain from further criticism of those brave and committed alternative media creators and step back from discussion and further questioning, or that viewers will be asked, in case of discomfort over the visible ineffectiveness of the decried demonstrations and actions of rebellion, to stand in solidarity with the freedom movement, and thus not to contest and berate, so that the resistance, which is still being built, can continue. If the integrity of the supposed producers of alternative media cannot be restored without harm, the people attacked vehemently defend themselves with further ideas and projects, often with even more useless ideas and projects.

They dismiss new criticism as malicious slander and/or suggest, through the concessive comments of their trolls and the intelligence agents who support them, that the system's attacks are behind it. Unfortunately, most viewers already believe in the productions of the alternative fake media without the special effects of the agent and troll department – although any educated person who is already aware of the tricks of mainstream public information with its fabricated scare stories, omissions and misinformation should know and be aware that the hidden powers of this world, within the alternative media, continually put on the same show of manipulation – inconspicuously, with perfect staging without arousing suspicion; perfectly coordinated and networked locally and globally.

Sometimes a bit improvised, but always convincing – and cheap as far as its actors are concerned; truly financed with pennies. A globally coordinated game that works so well, among other reasons, because even the real alternative media producers are insidiously and unsuspectingly caught up in the agenda of the fake alternative media, not knowing that they are simply repeating their own ideas, guidelines and approaches and joining in the formulation of fake alternative media without realizing that they are being brainwashed. In this way, attention can be diverted from deeper systemic analysis, or dangerous analysis, other ideas and opinions can be adapted, integrated and/or completely set aside into a new consensus – a protocol of reinterpretation and adaptation by which originally genuine free thinkers unwittingly become part of a canon of misinformation, confusion and fake enlightenment; they have no idea that they are among hypocrites and deceivers.

The ostensibly alternative media creators are supported primarily by a truly formidable army of specially trained "keyboard agents", paid trolls as well as intelligence employees of a so-called state protection service, members of secret lodges with their own Internet presence, and unofficial or spontaneously and with little pretext or lucrative incentive hired social media helpers. All their work and interaction is perfectly coordinated by a kind of central office. Their extensive social media placement makes this possible, correcting the viewer's thoughts and feelings, programming and/or improvisation – to establish the narratives that have been applied, to dispel irritations, to stabilize the course of direction or if necessary, to be able to reverse the course completely. This show of opinions and moods, thanks to its ingenious deep organization, seems not only to be beyond doubt about the good intentions or authenticity of the fake alternative media, but also to keep dissenters and doubters at bay with this concept.

Residual criticism or mistrust of viewers can be effortlessly ignored, discredited, confused, or isolated in this way; But if the fake alternative media scene does not get away with this, it adapts the opinions and views of these viewers for a short time, so that it can then use existing manipulation, reinterpret or adapt them effectively and incisively for their viewers. Contradictions and unpalatable information are hidden, false leads are created, and new "truths" are spread, while through frenzied discussions of alternative media and suggestions about health, technology, borderline sciences, myths, and spirituality, the necessary mental adaptation of the viewer is purposefully completed. New or reprogramming measures are then always appropriately offset or embellished with myths, stories, and voices from resorts of hope and salvation to reassure, stall, and divide the audience into new belief groups – now or later; to pacify and/or channel their potential for rebellion with leaders who appear trustworthy – to keep hope alive.

For this purpose, intelligence services, false alternatives and paid trolls are used via psychological operations in social media to create new legends, for which the alternative media introduces new dogmas and terminologies for example, with the belief in the "flat earth" or the esoteric idea of individually selectable "timelines". These and other similar psy-ops, however, are not only meant to direct individuals exclusively onto ideologically dogmatically wrong paths, which can lead to further insecurity, controversy, ignorance, and division, but should also specifically target other groups of alternative media viewers, e.g. spiritual rebels, for whom esoteric or mythical psy-ops are a means of reducing fear and thus also the possibility of taking sustainable precautions for disasters, so that overall defensibility of people prone to rebellion for post-apocalyptic consequences can be further reduced.

The hidden and digital powers of this world use all imaginable tools for the manipulation of opinion and thought control in alternative media, which are enforceable under existing laws, from the right of surveillance up to the right of war, contractually, technically and infrastructurally, as well as psychologically-operatively within existing laws – however, of course it is beyond all morality and honesty; a fascist depotentiation of freedom and self-determination. Starting from the dissemination of the absurd to the trivial rumors, discussions staged in comment columns, forums, podcasts or chats, to public media discrediting and threatening unwelcome topics and content. Depending on the plan of the occult powers, in collaboration and skillful polarization between the alternative and mainstream media, any individual or group, issue, opinion or gossip can be publicized, supported and slanders can be amplified, supported and passed off as truth or instead discredited, twisted, used and torn to shreds, causing irritation, rejection or division among viewers of all media toward each other and among themselves.

Exactly like the mainstream media, the fake-alternative media is controlled by a hidden system of control, which remotes what the viewer is allowed to think, feel and do. This controlling influence is manifested in the alternative scene sectors since the fake-alternatives, due to their simply large numbers and their support structure working in the background, have the sovereignty of interpretation; a superiority generated by technical structures, by which, as needed, viewers can be deceived at every level and at the same time the real operators of authentic channels can be held down, discredited or silenced. However, the suppression and control of unwanted content is carried out not only by keyboard trolls, intelligence employees or hired helpers in social media, but also by the many secret takeovers of global media companies.

Special manipulation techniques are thus used almost invisibly against the unwanted. Channel operators and their viewers hardly notice that channel values are being corrected and that the channel's external impact and broadcasting functions are severely compromised. Contributions thus lag behind, and over time channels may disappear from public perception altogether. In the context of the daily alternative media events, the occult powers of this world even resort to the censorship methods of the media companies they have purchased in order to be able to rehabilitate their many infiltrated false alternatives to the public, for example, in case doubts emerge about their authenticity, or to make the false alternatives appear more authentic overall in their external effect.

With this last point in mind – authenticity to emphasize – viewers should not be surprised, especially at this time, if longtime and sympathetic media producers, often suspected of being "gatekeepers," disappear or their presence in social media shrinks or spreads. This is not a suppression or proof of their authenticity, but a calculation – because it was their job, a show that lasted decades; an era at the end in which employees are slowly retiring from service, that is, retiring indefinitely or having them return later, as heroes, political leaders and innovators, after the chaos has been established – depending on their image and what they are able to assume. Because people need to have faith in something again after all the chaos. And because people will obviously remember these apparent enlighteners and revolutionaries, they will think that these can shape a constructive new world – the "golden age" always heralded by these alternative media and eagerly awaited by their viewers.

It can be difficult for social media users to understand all the machinations taking place in the background. Alternative fakes are difficult to detect, as their presentation alone, due to organizational structure and the extensive technical possibilities for manipulation make them almost unassailable. And it is precisely because of this superiority and stability of their interpretive sovereignty that the occult powers of this world need not fight or eliminate by destructive methods the genuine, authentic alternatives, enlighteners and investigators from the very beginning of their work. First, they seek to integrate them with assistance, adaptation and reinterpretation into the narratives and viewpoints created by the Fake Alternative Media – in a construction of alternative views, in which the interest shown by the popular fake alternatives initially seems wholly unthought of for the genuine enlighteners, on whom the attention paid to their channel, contributions and personality is simply recognition, confirmation and support.

Only if the counter-network fails to adapt in the medium term by these attempts at integration and adaptation will trolls and shadow-banning be called upon to intervene more intensively to undermine the offensive. Thus, the potential of this influence machine is that it can publicize and push anything that corresponds to the thinking and directional goals of its clients; this machinery can then blunt and push away discordant opinions and competitors without much difficulty. Its influence remains invisible, strong, and flexible, while the whole course of its operation is always absolutely authentic and truthful, through which in the end it maintains its strong leadership and thought control. With all these participants, the recruits, corrupts and lackeys of the secret lodges, who must and will implement the constructive side of a specially defined good-evil ideology, unprecedented manipulative fires of distraction and decomposition can be kindled.

Shows and productions that reach the deepest depths. Convincing especially because these are fake-alternative personalities and characters who are dear to us because of their long familiarity, their sympathetic impression, their life story, their seemingly constructive intentions or even because they have been opposed in the public media, because they seem so confident and utterly natural. Behind which, however, lies nothing more but the path to chaos sustained with the help of these people. Most of the alternative media has never been part of any resistance. In fact, there is not and never has been a free and unchecked resistance – unless you, the public, want to be the resistance. You are in a position to do so, and only you, if you stop binding yourselves to self-confident leaders, if you stop blindly following so-called avengers, rulers, leaders and self-appointed initiators.

If you don't continue to simply follow the supposed rebels, the fake free spirits, the flattering accusers of injustice and the human-catchers. Unfortunately, there are not many possibilities left as far as successfully combating the mechanisms of manipulation and control, cunning and ruthless with its initiated mass slaughter. But the possibilities still exist; just when all seems already lost – even if we are in the midst of the peak of the most terrible events – anything is still possible. Don't forget this; it is crucial. But the power of control and surveillance goes much deeper. Today almost no one can imagine what is possible in terms of surveillance and opinion making. Especially because insane and wicked means are being used in combination against uprising, genuinely enlightened, freedom-loving people. They use such reprehensible and scandalous methods that we only use the subjunctive to describe them, even the most insignificant things – certainly, because these are only rumors and not anecdotes or confirmations.

That, for example, intelligence services or top-secret intelligence subgroups instrumentalized bona fide citizens being unjustly monitored by providing them with lies about targets. Under the pretext of a terrorist, state, or civil danger situation, the lied-to citizens thus faithfully and unquestioningly participated in surveillance. They could even be used as willing puppets to manipulate or kill a human being. It would happen if spy agencies collaborated with the Mafia and paid mercenaries in a so-called "BLACK-OP", an undocumented intelligence operation. People in the immediate vicinity of the target would also have to be informed: neighbors, co-workers, landlord or even employees of stores, restaurants or supermarkets frequented by the subject. These citizens would be told that with their help more suffering could be avoided or that the person to be eliminated could be quietly eliminated without too much fuss, which would be better so as not to unnecessarily upset the public.

Methods of assassination that occurred more often than one can imagine – possible only in a completely fascist system of cover-up by the state and intelligence services. What is more dishonest, when the fake alternative media, to support their supposed authenticity, talk about these methods of assassination in such a way that they themselves are threatened by this danger in their work. They explain that the lack of deadly attacks by the system that threatened them fortunately did not occur or at least remained within limits because the network of alternative media is well-organized and mutually supportive – and this would therefore have been avoided – and that they, the false alternatives, need not fear any direct danger because of their publicity. And this is correct, but not so much for the named reason, but rather the fact that the false alternative media are indispensable and an essential part of an elitist manipulation network.

Worse than in the days of the Stasi, however, the real creators of alternative media and people destroying the power of control were not only being completely monitored online, in virtual space, but also at home, being filmed and put under surveillance with the latest technology, followed everywhere with micro and nano GPS transmitters on their clothes. Their communication devices were seized, their every action was recorded, and then their every intention was made visible so that it could be used for exhausting, manipulative or even life-threatening attacks and interventions. If these people were identified as subversives of the ruling control apparatus, even the most unsuspected orders from the Internet were equipped with GPS trackers and electronic listening devices or, depending on the presentation of the ordered product, were filled with poison or other dangerous substances.

Even calling the plumber could be dangerous; that one would end up not at the plumber's, but at the nice Secret Service employee next door, who then, as a gas and water plumber, suddenly has to replace a small piece of water pipe to the kitchen during the inspection of the gas boiler; then installs a replacement piece of pipe that has been prepared with a remote-controlled poison deposit. Since toward the people being spied on any form of data communication can be manipulated, diverted, blocked and even interfered with, a call to one's Internet provider, due to a slow or continuous or a constantly interrupted Internet connection, could be intercepted by an intermediary intelligence agent, who diagnoses an apparently defective router, which is why a new, excellent router is offered at a low or even free price, which, in addition to software for manipulating Internet and computer traffic, also contains special eavesdropping devices and high-resolution cameras.

If these attempts at more invasive data manipulation and installation of high-resolution cameras and bugs could not be implemented as planned, the controllers would turn to the landlord to confide in him that a dangerous terrorist is hiding behind his tenant's facade. As a result, the tenant could suddenly get new fancy smoke detectors from the landlord for his apartment, even for the bathroom, utility room, and basement! But what a generous and thoughtful gesture. Control and surveillance would not even stop with people who only inform themselves in social media or who want to claim some freedom of personal expression. These contemporaries would not be harassed to the extent just described, but nonetheless all alternative media "viewers" – regardless of whether they consumed alternative media – whether fake or authentic – are classified by fascist intelligence services as a danger, troublemaker and/or potential terrorist, and thus monitored more closely than other citizens.

It is argued that the latter classification as a potential terrorist is particularly common because it allows some deeper surveillance orders to be issued. Moreover, intelligence agents, state and police officials have no doubts about the justification for surveillance based on the statement made, let alone the knowledge that their surveillance actions are in fact illegal interventions against ordinary citizens that restrict their freedom and freedom of speech. Moreover, intelligence agents conducting surveillance often know only what is officially announced at their leadership level about the people to be infiltrated. In the case of people to be monitored without justification, the interception activity would then be subject only to higher secret levels, which decide the further course of action. As a result, many things about the true motives of their operations would not be known to lower and executive intelligence officers, who would not normally know that they are unjustifiably pursuing a person, intervening and acting against him or her.

If this later became clear, or if they discovered something they had not been allowed to discover, they too, like their victims, would be taken out of the way – honorably dropped in the line of duty. This would also happen with intelligence officers at higher levels, but only if national and/or intelligence need, such as an order or urgent protection of secrets, made it unavoidable. For example, if one supported and helped orchestrate a huge hoax that would be leaked in some places – for example, a psychopathic staging of the highest level on a global scale – then the only way to conceal the relevant plans, organization and procedures was to liquidate the intelligence officers, lackeys, civil servants and unwitting police. Surveillance of alternative media and their viewers does not mean, for example, that you should delete your Telegram account out of the blue or that you should generally stop consuming critical content on social media.

This is not necessary, because you, the viewers, are already on their list and you will stay there, especially since anyone with a phone and Internet access is recorded everywhere anyway, with everything that has been written, spoken, downloaded or watched, for more than two decades. A point no one needs to be convinced of today. But let us continue with the subjunctive. For the control and surveillance of the average citizen in combination with fake alternatives, trolls and network agents, also methods to lure people into the network in order to find more suspicious viewers to put them at the center of deeper surveillance. This would be done, for example, through the sale of supposedly old and unused prepaid phone cards that have already been activated and thus no longer require personal registration. These phone cards could be found and purchased, for example, among other things, in fake Telegram channels installed by the intelligence services, where the names and addresses of customers provided with these cards were recorded, so that all voice and data communications could be stored and classified for monitoring.

If the State Security Service were to identify a potential structural danger in a user of these non-personalized prepaid cards, he or she would not only be subjected to more extensive surveillance, but would also be secretly placed on a list to be used for a staged terrorist attack. Deeper surveillance would also be carried out on people who, through real or fake alternative media, learn about the so-called "Declaration of Life" or "Yellow Card"² and eventually request these documents – often advertised with slogans of regaining freedom, resisting the system or the occupying power. Although these documents reveal the astonishingly deplorable state of civil and human rights and indirectly demonstrate the state of siege in many states, the publicity about them on social media has omitted the fact that, on the one hand, acquiring such documents does not produce any lasting liberating change in general.

And on the other hand, especially the so-called "statement of life," should always be requested several times and "in a different way," in a special context to remain valid or to be as valid as expected. Presumably, the advice to apply for these liberating documents would not be useful at all in helping people to really free themselves from the bondage and control of our world, but would mainly serve to track down people who are potentially a threat to the state, in order to track down their habits, interests and data. The "yellow card" and "life statement" would therefore not structurally change anything for the individual or a group of people. The advertisements and explanations of fakes in alternative media are mostly commissioned by the intelligence services, supported in good faith by unwitting and genuine alternative media producers.

²Translators note: The German term "Gelber Schein" (Yellow Card) refers to a document, which is meant to disentangle from state law and provide a self-governing civil life. Some people in Germany follow this trend.

This brief excursus on secret service operations taking place in both the bourgeois and alternative media environment is not intended to upset you, dear viewers; Its purpose is only to stimulate you to sharpen your sense for things that at first glance seem so devoid of malice and seemingly harmless in social media and that, against the backdrop of enlightenment and the fight against evil, seem to have a completely honest, trusting or loving intention. Therefore, always pay attention and consider where stalling, deflection and false resistance programs might hide. Most of the formats, arguments, and discussions in the false alternative media work with the help of psychologically effective catalysts. This means that topics that to some extent seem to contain enlightening aspects and information are reprogrammed in the viewer's mind – fake solutions, new perspectives and unconscious conclusions.

In other words, problems and solutions that are all supposed to be related or part of the solution to a larger general problem. Therefore, especially in relation to alternative media, do not evaluate things as they are apparently presented to you at the first moment, but consider that from the general context of political or popular issues presented individually, in the long run a certain goal will be achieved by the controlling power of this world – from the emerging reactions, the resulting actionism, the apparent investigative exposure and suppression shown, and the supposedly initiated resistance and discussions that have ensued. Beware of emerging salvation figures, the idea of founding a party, esoteric-magical approaches to solutions or even the fixation on the advent of a "golden age". Always review, compare and recapitulate all this so that you can accurately identify methods of control, stalling tactics and plans of the powerful.

In order to keep the hope and deception structure of faux-alternative manipulation stable, autonomous, and durable, new regulatory concepts are often introduced into public perception, involving the transformation or reinforcement of thoughts and feelings; norms that supposedly confirm apparent truths to people by imposing or suggesting interpretations to them subliminally – assumed secrets that can thus become clear to the viewer. These concepts include, for example, the online decoding systems of the so-called Gematria, letters apparently created by public and/or private entities, with methods of decrypting names and words, presented as a scientifically defined coding project, which claims to be able to identify religiously motivated numerical values from actual terms or names on the basis of sacred scriptures and secret coding structures.

An operating system that is all too easily used against spiritual people to reinforce their belief in prophecies or primarily to create them – using predicted people and situations, fates and events, even to ward off any doubt that might arise in the distant future that behind all catastrophic events is a conflict triggered by minions and lackeys of secret societies. Although the Gematria results for each name entered are always very numerous and diverse – the informational value is therefore already zero due to the diversity and extensibility of the results. At first glance, the results, ranging from bizarre to frightening, are apparently extremely revealing in an authentic way and can have an impact on some viewers, particularly people of religious, spiritual and/or esoteric inspiration, especially when paid trolls and system employees go into particular details and insist on certain numerical values issued in comment columns and forums.

The ancient numerical system of Gematria therefore today can be used in such a way that the control system can plant any individual, object or event in people's perception and attention at will, as needed. Figures of future political saviors, desirable people and events, narratives of hope and all kinds of terms from the religious world can be propagated, supported, combined or exchanged in this way, as well as with processes to be initiated spiritually confirmed or endowed with a positive image, while at the same time elements to be discredited or fought, such as corporations, states, real or installed enemies, with a predominantly negative image. The values of Gematria are also used to flexibly and desirably generate, through the catastrophic spectacle of the end, a new spiritual and religious narrative or even a new gospel for subsequent generations.

In order for Fake Alternatives in social media to maintain the status quo among resistant people – to maintain the division that already exists, to channel anger and division – Fake Alternatives were designed from the beginning to be diverse and flexible in its individual appearances, so that individual fake channels can be used as competitors or to cooperate with other Fake Alternatives as needed. This means that the most diverse subject areas, entertainment, and action strategies in the individual spheres of the Fake media alternatives ensure that resistant people can, will, and should adhere to different alternative views, by which they can then, if necessary, be conveniently pitted against each other, or through which the impression of apparent cooperation, cohesion, or advocacy can be conveyed to them, or each sector of the alternative media can be directed, rescheduled, and diverted as needed.

In their show of manipulation, the fake alternates thus often link minor evils with the supposedly larger problems of this world. Thus, for example, their fight against mandatory GEZ fees³, their commitment to independent energy production, or their search for sensible treatment methods not only support the hope and prospect for change conveyed through these topics, but also the credibility and good intentions of the fake alternatives in general, so that viewers can be directed specifically toward desires and aspirations through this trust; goals, hopes and solutions are suggested to achieve the much-needed liberation from slavery and oppression in a complete package for the future, a better age – the "golden age" promised by religion that, upon closer examination, turns out to be simply a programming of the mind and psyche – even as one of the main programming within known secret societies to establish a dominant spiritual-religious control over humanity after the catastrophes we are facing.

Alternative media viewers willingly believe the partly magical and partly factual portrayals of that age to come, because they rightly wish for a "golden age" to come that will eliminate all current problems. It is often invoked as the reason why it will prevail and it will come, because it is prophesied in many ancient writings and has astrological allegorical underpinnings, such as the Age of Aquarius, which, in a kind of magical liberation, would unstoppably dissolve the destructive forces of the world. And it will come because goodness will prevail – that it will be real, after all, there are so many independent references all over the world, even foreign religions, extinct peoples or the Bible indicate this, which is sublime and silences all doubt. The false channels of alternative or esoteric media use these so-called hints and clues as evidence to reinforce the veracity of this hope and at the same time deepen the desire for salvation.

No one, therefore, suspects-not even true spiritual channels or authentic people – that there is sophisticated deception in this hope; that false alternatives are progressively involved in marketing and proclaiming an imminent golden age with an allegorical-spiritual background and that they belong only to the so-called good, constructive side of secret societies, with the difference from their counterparts who instead operate negatively, supposedly represent and implement the "bad" actions and elements on earth for the transformation process, offer people ideas and solutions; all to show the ways out of misery as well as a hope and promise of improvement. Despite the fact that these two sides belong to the same coin and in the built competition and struggle against each other, they pursue only the primary goal, through torment, destruction and predominant deficiency, but also through solution and solution-oriented help and ways out, to advance the progress and development of qualities and possibilities; to finally align ourselves as humanity in such a way that we can be brought onto a special path of spiritual and material development.

Therefore, dear viewers, as stated many times before, all that is coming our way, all that concerns and contains it, is a staging that has been meticulously prepared by all-encompassing forces globally, for centuries at all levels, partially even for millennia. Do not get involved, to be deceived or fooled. This is not a magical destiny or a divine plan, but only serves the biological digitization of humanity. There has not been a golden age in the past, nor will there be one in the future, which does not mean that humanity is unable to produce its own constructive development without doctrine from outside. Just as there have never been, nor will there ever be, golden ages – there are not and never will be eras or ages of darkness. The promises of the "golden age" are and were always constructed by alien powers for the development and progress of intelligent spiritual species, which even in ancient times, in the earlier technologically advanced global civilizations on Earth, tens of thousands of years ago, humans were just taken for a ride.

Based on an extraterrestrial philosophy that only "evil" – destruction, misery and violence – can create "good" and constructive. All progress and development must therefore be from the "good" and "bad" forces initiated, from suffering and joy, from positivity and negativity, with human assistance; from lackeys being part of special secret brainwashing societies and groups and financially lured minions influence all areas of the world; thus laying the foundation for purposeful development. The astrological-allegorical ages, aligned according to the astrological zodiac – the ages of gold, silver, bronze or darkness – are not and never have been anything authentic, sacred, super-sensible truth or secret knowledge, but are simply a kind of "spiritual development aid calendar" of extraterrestrial powers.

These are controlled progressive measures that have been used for millennia to implant false spirituality and identity in our brains through aristocracy and elites, through legends, programmed dogmas, civilizing legislation, culture and religiosity. Long-term ideological programming made especially for the spiritual human mind; like a permanent sleeping pill for religious fetishists and die-hard dogmatists of the unwakable hope; but ultimately created primarily to establish domination, control and order of control and thus to produce a domesticated and adapted civilized man. The most effective methods of regulating and calming the rabid citizens, through which the constructive lackeys of the good-evil secret society, have been fine-tuned control, additional time, flexibility and staging capacity.

In addition to securing credibility and sympathy, well-considered and expedient actions of pseudo-resistance, in which, for example, faux-alternatives carry on an agitation against half-known elites are used by secret societies, against, for example, partially or misinformed politicians, financial juggernauts, or industrial tycoons; while in the same time and space of action, other high-ranking and "constructively operating" members of these relevant secret lodges, who present themselves as scholars, doctors or experts, good-naturedly call for objectivity and scientific correctness, are then lauded in social media and publicized as bearers of hope – to calm upset people, they then also have their say in the mainstream. What viewer could still think or even suspect that behind these well-meaning scientists are lackeys of secret lodges – amid the hail of bullets of injustice everywhere, despotism and state oppression?

The purpose of their appearances is not the resolution of negative circumstances but, together with the discrediting of semi-informed politicians, they follow much more subtle purposes. The most obvious sign that enlighteners, truthers, scholars, and revolutionaries are clearly and undoubtedly tricksters – that is, collaborators with the system – is usually revealed by their useless actionism, their absurd ideas, the discussions held on alternative sites and the mainstream media, and their stalling, manifestations of powerlessness. They can be recognized by the fact that, for example, they answer critical questions about the stubborn continuation of their patently useless resistance actions with specially crafted excuses, while sometimes shamelessly celebrating some political concessions or withdrawal of measures as a success of their inefficient actionism.

The deception of these lackeys is particularly evident in the fact that they always advertise their dilatory methods as liberating courses of action, but stalling and distraction are used exclusively to maintain or preserve control over the potentially rebellious masses. Preserving so that the suppressed anger and energy of these riot-ready people can be used, if necessary, for later interventions or necessary socio-civil regulations, such as riots, conquests and revolutions of all kinds. The retarding treatment of people who are ready to revolt can thus generally prevent all forms of possible attacks and threats to the system, so that the plans of the powers behind the secret societies can be carried out and implemented without great difficulty.

The main objective is always to infiltrate and/or block movements and plans that could bring out an independent and real overthrow, for example, the establishment of a workers' boycott; of a multi-regional workers' strike that would completely paralyze the system; and to demand concessions from politicians, forcing them to back down. Useful defensive measures that the occult powers of our planet have no use for in the realization of their goals. So, in this game, do not get involved in bogus discussions with representatives of these false alternatives, suggesting that they are drawing up plans of action, or even finding a basis for talking to politicians or that at least the different producers of alternative media be brought to a common denominator, so that in the future, sooner or later and somehow, perhaps a better alternative can be found.

This is a purely cosmetic operation, partly to assuage the already heated suspicions of some viewers who complain that alternative media producers are proceeding too timidly and/or fail to come up with an adequate solution or course of action. The conversations and debates in fake alternative media generate the same psychological stimulus as traditional, talk show programs with politicians arguing-away from any action initiative-and the persistence of problems is presumed to be due to the individual characters, circumstances, and the differing opinions of the protagonists involved. A truly age-old trick, which in the end, thanks to the reliance on the alternative media landscape, makes it understandable to even the most enlightened viewers that resistance is paralyzed for human reasons, and that it is necessary to discuss among ourselves, to search for solutions and ways out, and thus still waiting for the change or liberation from the misery that lies ahead.

In this context, always make sure that you do not allow yourself to be unnecessarily excited or incited by false alternatives against corrupt or blackmailed political slaves – this reactive focus on elite, political and elitist and supposedly money- and power-oriented politicians generates emotional control and driving power over you. Public agitation, anger, and incitement do not change social circumstances anyway; it is only intended to distract you, freeze you, make you passive, keep you busy in front of screens, and give you short-term satisfaction through any kind of apparent success or ineffective protest activity. It also reinforces your senses of sympathy and credibility for the agitators, to make the viewer more receptive to further manipulative and diversionary programs.

To ensure that the futility of the staged liberation actions remains largely unknown, the actors and initiators are always ready to demonstrate their integrity and authenticity by presenting a half-baked path to their hopeful spectators and motivated authentic freedom fighters, a course of bogus ideas, plans and projects and fake successes, which one must then regulate, in coordination with the occult powers of this world, how far guided resistance can go, lest it inadvertently trigger a truly dangerous overthrow. A relatively recent example of this approach is the procedure in January and February 2022 in German-speaking countries. The protests through walks that have also been much talked about in the mainstream have shown that citizens want to take back their rights and oppose the system.

While the mainstream condemned, scolded, and classified the walkers, the fake alternative media simultaneously tried to portray this as a great success, arguing that the continuation of such and similar actions would be of considerable importance for active and beneficial resistance in the future. Alternative media viewers are led to believe that the situation has improved simply because of the walks and small protests held in many cities-that the walks made politicians relent and that this is why vaccination was not mandatory and that the fake alternative media actively contributed to this, that people were able to successfully resist the measures. A concept with which one can comfortably argue that there is no need for other sustainable concepts, other lasting acts of resistance, such as the recent mock general strike in Austria, and that they are not necessary; that such ideas can rightly be completely abandoned because it has been shown that success can be achieved in exactly the same way by much simpler and less risky methods.

Goodwill pretense with subsequent flimsy justification for withdrawal are just some of the most common methods found in the regulations of this old of this proven practice. But what do these conditions of dishonesty in the alternative media mean to you, the viewers? What can you, as followers and supporters of fake alternative media, do to escape the ensuing dilemma of false promises, misdirected energies and unfulfilled hopes? What can be done so that the supposed false resisters are in such an uncomfortable situation that it becomes clearly evident who these people really serve? Or, to put it another way, how can we expose this manipulation and, at the same time, actively act against the overwhelming power of this system? For this, it is not enough to make public their patterns of action and psychological-operational procedures or to ask them critical questions about their escapes and misanthropic methods and poor results.

In order for something to be sustainably realized, first of all you, as the spectators, should begin to take the resistance into your own hands. To successfully avoid the opponents' broad front of manipulation, your approach or project will have to be constructed in such a way that it eliminates the core areas of the enemy's decomposition mechanism from the very beginning. Hence, if your design or movement is designed in such a way as to offer your opponents the smallest possible structural attack surface. To understand and learn how such a thing cannot or should not happen, we recommend the example of the workers' boycott or general strike in Austria, announced for December 2021, which was promisingly promoted by false alternatives in public. Although the announced general strike was simply a delaying tactic, but we can still glean from its example in an excellent way what mistakes and measures should be avoided from the very beginning in such a project by those who truly love freedom.

In any case, general strikes or boycotts-which we of course absolutely totally strongly advise against at all-should be spectators – it would have to be completely different from an organizational point of view to be successful. If the fake resistance set up in Austria, with its purpose of with its planned general strike had been real, what would it have had to do differently? First, in planning and organizing a general strike or boycott, the data of consenting participants should not be written down or collected. The beginnings of strikes and boycotts have shown that anonymity is an indispensable cornerstone of a strike's success.

Participants' unity is otherwise endangered, they may be threatened and, betrayed or subjected to violence and restrictions. So if this data collection was generally counterproductive, and let us assume that the initiators that the promoters knew exactly what was necessary for success, why did they collect data from participants on such flimsy grounds? Do you remember what was said in this video a few minutes earlier about the "yellow note" or so-called "life statement"? Recording and/or storing personal data in connection with potential "activities that undermine the order of the state" said in the subjunctive, could be just a trick of the opposing side, by which potentially seditious individuals are arrested, and monitored in the future. For these reasons, you should never give your data to organizers of strikes or boycotts: there is simply no need, no matter how trustworthy these people may seem to you.

The pretext that this is about better organizing, so that you can network, or so that you can determine how many citizens would join, would be nothing more than a collection of data about potential dangers. In general, organizing a labor strike-a boycott based on sick leave, not even a general strike-would require far less than generally stated. And apart from the absolute withholding of your personal information by apparent organizers of a strike or labor boycott, it would, as I said, have been important to organize absolutely anonymously in your public appearances. Speaking in the subjunctive, because of course here we only want to examine the theory of a labor boycott or strike. Speaking in the subjunctive, because of course here we want to examine only the theory of the boycott or strike of the we will use the labor boycott for example the boycott at the end of 2021 in Austria, to show how mistakes would have been avoided.

There would have been job refusals to implement a job boycott, designed anonymously and therefore uninfluenced, through for sick leave, it would have been enough to create a web page on the Internet or a channel on Telegram. In such a page or channel there would have been only three anonymous and noncommittal surveys on the planning or upcoming boycott: a survey regarding confirmation of participation in the boycott, which would have determined the number of participants willing to participate, followed by a second survey on the region or city, which would have broken down the detailed growth of each participant and the spread of participants in each region, while the third and final set of questions would have determined the duration and time period in which they intended to be absent from work, so that each participant could have individually allocated and organized their resources for the work-based sick leave boycott.

The project rules to be found on the website or channel should have explained in an understandable way, how exactly the sick leave-based work boycott works and why it had to take place in such a minimalist, anonymous, and individual setting to be most successful. Participants would be able to use the surveys to obtain information about the status and progress of the project and carry it forward independently. The work boycott based on sick leave would have been carried out together and quietly at home by all participants, without the need for accompanying demonstrations or visible external publicity. In addition, participants would have been able to dispense with supportive content from forums, chats, or channels, where trolls, lackeys, and paid agents would have been used to try to mislead, disorient, and/or hold willing participants back.

Participants would have remained detached, independent, and uninfluenced. Even the word of mouth necessary for the success of the movement would in any case in the false alternative over represented media have had to have taken place and could not have been avoided by deployed trolls and agents. Even if, as always, it had been tried with all available forces in the alternative media in the form of reinterpretation, misrepresentation, distraction, and discrediting. The attention would have increased in the long run, especially from the real alternative media. In spite of this, the occult powers of our world would have kept the ball rolling to irritate participants and the undecided, to create psychological pressure and undermine the structure of the boycott project, bringing it into the social media in the form of numerous modified adaptations.

In the channels, forums, chats, and videos they created, they would also try to stump potential participants with legal provisions on labor boycotts, while there, together with other trolls and agents, they would argue that organizational issues, that a boycott would only be useful with many millions of people at once and that it would have to last for several weeks and months to be rudimentarily successful; However, such an action would endanger, if not kill, a large number of defenseless and innocent people. In fact, a boycott based solely on The anonymously organized boycott would not have had to last very long, only a few days, and it would not have taken tens of millions of people to be closely involved in pressuring politicians. For this reason, too, no one would have been in real danger.

Contrary to what influencers, trolls, agents, and paid fake truthers have improperly proclaimed about the labor boycott in recent years, civilization would not have collapsed, people would not have died, as some trolls in 2021, in particular, cited in chats and Telegram channels as an argument for a collapse of civilization caused by labor boycotts. Thanks to the structure of this labor boycott, those who intended to strike in an anonymously organized movement would not have had to be on call, sacrifice their free time, or make themselves permanently available for the project for a long period of time, but could always flexibly participate in individual strike waves and take part in them at will. Nor would it have been necessary, as the organizers of the fake Austrian general strike often claimed, that a strike must work immediately to be successful. An anonymous, decentralized organization of the workers' strike would even have made it possible.

An anonymous and decentralized organization of the workers' strike would have even made it possible, even in the days of word of mouth, scattered throughout the occupational landscape, to see or test the growing strength of the planned strike by means of individual boycott vectors, which would not only have been sufficient to rapidly increase the pressure on institutions and politicians, but would also have been of enormous and further publicizing the movement. With an anonymously organized labor boycott, the people would have been able, through the reverse pyramid effect, within a matter of days, to put incredible pressure on their bosses, the management of companies and businesses, and parts of the infrastructure and markets. A pressure that, due to the partial collapse of the infrastructure, would have been quickly transported to the level of the piloted politicians, who would have had no choice but to accept the conditions imposed.

Misinformation, irritation and distraction, as well as stoking fears and doubts, are always the preferred means of the secret powers of this world. Not being irritated by these powers would have been especially important to discuss in forums and groups, where they are always trying to distract and burden people with misinformation. Even if discussion groups would not have been necessary for an anonymous boycott of the work anyway, trolls and agents would have put on their manipulative show in specially created fake groups, put on a manipulative show for people interested in boycotting the work, making them withdraw or inciting them to act rashly: For example, with the advice that it would be better to also talk to colleagues about this organized strike project anonymously without preserving one's anonymity-even to the boss; or that one should not only talk about this labor boycott project on the Internet, but also in public, otherwise the idea will not spread.

In the fake-discussions, chats, and forums, they would also have discussed which illnesses seemed most plausible for a confirmed work absence note, which illness was best presented to the doctor and what would be convincing to the employer at the same time. In addition, the organizational impossibility of labor boycotts in general would have been discussed and they would then have tried to highlight the structural impossibility and uselessness of anonymously organized labor boycotts. Trolls and agents would be particularly detailed in their staging. The discussion program would have delved into the alleged legal risks and dangers that a boycott based on sick leave would surely entail for everyone – namely, that participation would emerge due to the tracking of cell phones and other computing devices.

However, sick leave per se under these circumstances and the would never have been illegal, even if there was a strong suspicion that it was in support of a labor boycott. A prosecution or conviction of individuals would not have been legally tenable because it would have been based solely on the fact that these individuals, in addition to their sick leave, made a few clicks and variously interpretable statements on a web page or Telegram channel, because sick days and website clicks do not in themselves constitute an unequivocal statement of intent and do not prove direct incitement or a call to strike against third parties. Legal investigative measures might not have failed because of the violation of personal rights, and the prosecution attempt would fact that potentially misleading clicks with ambiguously interpretable information about place of residence and time period could not have documented any meaningful intent.

Above all, however, the passive and silent form of organizing this anonymous labor boycott would have ruled out any consequences from the outset for those who wanted to participate in the strike. For all those who wanted to play it completely safe, however, the installation of a VPN client on PCs, laptops, tablets, or smartphones would have been recommended; this would have made the clicks completely anonymous, and tracing individuals would have required considerable legal and organizational effort on the part of the state. Thus, even if a VPN client would not have been able to guarantee complete protection from the state and the international surveillance system, the state and its legal system would have had to expose itself in this way to questions that would have revealed particularly clearly the contradictions of a supposedly democratic and legal liberal legal system.

The only means that could have effectively blocked the organization of an anonymous boycott of labor would have been an order from the occult powers to implement a specific hack or ban of a channel or website, which could have been countered at least with a VPN client on one's laptop or smartphone or, in the case of a website hack, with the use of mirrored servers. If citizens had wanted to create a real freedom movement through the anonymous boycott, the most important thing would have been to design the voting and polling areas strictly, without flimsy additions and unnecessary additional information. Attempts to adapt could then be quickly recognized by their disintegration strategy and delaying tactics – as well as their excuses. For example, that a sufficient number of subscribers, one hundred or two hundred thousand, must be collected before the survey area can be activated.

And that after all, one must strike with great force. Or that without a website or channel change, there would be wild confusion in the survey area. Participants might have been told, as in the fake forums, chats and groups, that they should promote the workplace boycott or that more than three basic surveys were needed to be successful. And that they had to provide information about the industry or even the company where they worked-all this, of course, to better initiate the labor boycott. Fake alternatives, claiming only useless ideas of resistance all the time, would have been of no help in initiating an anonymous labor boycott.

Had they been asked to take an active part in an anonymous labor boycott, they could have comfortably argued that mentioning or even promoting such a boycott would put them in legal jeopardy, something they could not risk because of their significant influence in the resistance movement. Even if simply naming or abstractly describing the ideas of an anonymous organized labor boycott would not have entailed any legal consequences for an alternative media practitioner, it would still have been an understandable line of argument behind which no one would have suspected directly directed opposition to the channeling of the masses. In the end, the false alternatives would unfortunately have been incapable of actively participating in such action for the aforementioned legal and/or other understandable reasons-because, after all, this might have changed something in the situation of humanity.

For the impetus and success of an anonymous labor boycott, real media alternatives only had to indirectly refer to the anonymous boycott webpage or channel and address the anonymous labor boycott website or channel explaining its organization, procedures, and benefits so that like-minded people could participate. In this way, like-minded people would have been able to independently and anonymously exchange information about the number of all other willing labor rejectors, their region or city, and the duration of their respective labor boycott periods without any obligation. Participants who would have been anonymous and would not have communicated directly with each other could have avoided not only irritation, confusion, and red herrings from trolls, agents, and lackeys of secret societies, but also possible complaints from neighbors and acquaintances as well as colleagues and bosses at work.

Thus, no information about the work and personal life situation would be disclosed, only the essentials about the planned refusal to work. Absolutely secret and difficult for the occult powers of this world to affect. If such a project, created by authentic people according to these specifications, had actually been launched, The False Alternatives-even before the army of trolls and agents began their intensive work-would have put in place a very simple but extremely effective defense strategy, keeping the project in absolute silence, which would have dismantled or minimized an anonymous boycott of the work from the very beginning. Given the absolute dominance and interpretive authority of alternative fake media creators, this tactic would have been one of the most effective means of keeping the movement in check, in combination with other strategies and defensive measures of alternative fakes.

Visibly keeping known but fake alternative media producers out of a real labor boycott project would have been credible to viewers, however, not only because of the criminal law problems presented by these fake alternatives, but also because there would not have been general silence on social media about such a labor boycott project, despite everything; some smaller channels have already talked about the project, even if they are relatively unknown, diffuse, or dubious channels, but still. Unfortunately, it was in vain, which shows that people simply were not interested in the project, probably did not want to support it-just as little as the big alternative media channels believed in it, which deliberately kept quiet about it; so no one can be blamed or take responsibility for it. Not to mention that the operators of the smaller channels were dependent on the system.

From the general silence and ignorance of the fake alternative media in the face of the idea of anonymous, passive and decentralized refusal to work, you as viewers recognize the enormous extent of the manipulation being exerted on you by those installed alternative media actors. Highlighting their ignorance, passivity and not beating the saddle publicly, with a permanent determination, would have collapsed piece by piece their facade and the enormous clique and fraud behind these people; this would have greatly increased the pressure on their participation in publicizing the project in the short and medium term, such that without constructive engagement they would have completely lost their credibility.

By launching and initiating an anonymous boycott of the work to educate people about how it works and at the same time putting the Fake alternatives under duress to act for such a project, the large-scale distribution of a single educational video could have achieved remarkable results: a video, such as this one, in which, among other things, the covert maneuvers of paid lackeys are shown, the spectacle of freedom fighters and observers installed as well as the basis for directing a fake resistance would have been revealed. Subsequently, additional informational and conceptual videos would be created that, despite programs of interference and confusion by trolls and agents, the application of an anonymous system would push for the application of an anonymous, unconditional work boycott.

This should have been thought of earlier. But the train for this seems, no doubt, to have long since departed, partly because of the successful resistance of the fake alternative media in early 2022, there is no longer any need or reason for an anonymously organized labor boycott, because the savings of some citizens naturally helped us successfully resist measures, especially in the face of threatening constraints and when the problems come again, this courageous resistance by honest and truly authentic people and truly authentic alternative media, with its austerity walks that shake up politics, small car rallies or 5-minute strikes, will save us from fascist constraints and interference, thus succeeding in bringing the government the ruling powers to its knees and in trouble. Of course, this is only true if the false alternatives and figures discredited by the mainstream do not have to immediately behave as leaders, heroes or even saviors at the next strike.

Since the beginning of the crisis, every observant citizen could clearly see that the big players in the alternative media scene, with absurd actionism, reactive demonstrations and useless protests had no real interest in taking on and implementing in adopting effective resistance ideas and putting them into practice. If this has amazed you as viewers and made you aware, it should now be clear to you, with this video, that real resistance with these people has never been and will never be possible. You, as viewers, can now confront these false alternatives with your own doubts and questions, but genuine critical questions that do not come from their trolls or agents would be evaded or minimized. Further bending and adapting skepticism and scruples. Confrontation leads to almost nothing, at best defense and denial.

However, the very actions and behaviors of these resisters during the acute phase of the crisis—the months-long blockade of people ready to defend themselves and the channeling of emotions that occurred everywhere, as well as the hope for a savior or the incitement against the alleged perpetrators of this misery—have long since provided you with all the answers and evidence of the origin and mission of these installed contemporaries. While in the spring of 2022 the sanitary measures imposed were temporarily withdrawn by the state – this was presented by the fake alternatives simulating resistance to their viewers as a direct success of the national and regional resistance initiatives-if they were not to be convinced that the fake alternatives were generally trying to protect the population from the sting in the arm good-natured way, or that they wanted to continue to protect us in the long run now, based on their warnings of a disease or energy crisis that might continue from the winter months of 2022/23 onward.

Because those special lackeys-deployed globally and operating on false alternative media-have long since achieved the real goals for which they were commissioned. By the methods, in deceiving the most attentive people on this planet for exactly such a long time, that during the hot phase of the health plans to be implemented no major disruptions, delays or far-reaching obstacles have occurred, so that most of the world's populations have complied with the requirements and will ultimately be greatly affected by the yet-to-be-implemented consequences of the measures implemented. The classic pattern of installed resistance and opposition, from which new leaders, orientations and moral figures will also emerge, upon which, after the chaotic times, the old power structures of the occult rulers will be fully restored and then perpetuated in the power of absolute control.

Variants of incoming events

Mr. Laurent would like to point out that, in addition to the many possible deaths already mentioned by the alternative media, the variants of deaths from such health interventions, e.g. from nano-robotics, nano-chips, mutagenic interventions, and heavy metals, as well as the thrombosis and/or messenger deficiencies triggered by these interventions, will not necessarily be the sole cause of death from any of the above triggers; events need not take place or be enacted as they have already been described or announced in the alternative media, but rather that the control system will use a combination of procedures, events, and methods in such a way as to conceal the eventual discovery of a mass murder that has long been decided upon.

This means that the occult powers of this world always have at their disposal different variations of process and methods of intervention, which can be flexibly combined, swapped, shifted or omitted as needed. Regardless of whether or not the pathological crisis subsides, one possible scenario – as already announced in our March 2021 video – would then be that of a staged electrical blackout that causes gigantic chaos. When the blackout is over and we find ourselves in global chaos and economic collapse, something much worse could begin; something would literally be unleashed that would affect especially those who have undergone some form of genetic adaptation. A death event for which at first a natural biological cause is identified, but then some sort of sloppiness is discovered in the laboratories or even military intent is suspected, which sounds convincing to the panicked population because in previous years laboratory plots have been reported even in the mainstream media.

Because of these unusual circumstances, the Fake alternatives could then be initially confirmed and accepted as the exclusive cause, although covertly and indirectly, nano-robotics and heavy metals will also play their part in this clinical picture. Because with this laboratory story, with all the previous suspicions about the mode of action of a planned genocide by means of nano-robotics, heavy metals or nano-chips, apparently did not come true as expected, instead, the horror is demonstrably accompanied by a purely biological, even understandable effect – that is, that an artificially created, but real, highly dangerous and active pathogenic germ is responsible for the death of many people, especially to people undergoing medical treatment, who are therefore supposed to be completely lacking in immune defenses.

This initially leads people all over the world to conclude that this is primarily a purely political and medical failure, caused by the blind faith of politicians and journalists in new medical techniques, driven by the greed of the elites of profiteers and financial tycoons. People's anger is not only boiling over due to the electricity blackout, and the resulting global economic and civil chaos, but riots and lynch mobs against the wealthy and members of the ruling class are beginning to accumulate. And given that the genetic adaptation has led to the deaths of so many people, it has only been the result of the massive propaganda and politics of the past months and years, it will not be difficult to argue that the political powers and elites – the juggernauts of finance, doctors, industrialists, journalists, the well-to-do, and the and the profiteers of the control system – are the real culprits and pullers of strings in this development.

This may initiate an initial, but still relatively harmless, wave of faux-alternative leadership, which, in light of the clarification of events, will enjoy considerably greater hearing and attention among the people than it did months and years before. If, however, in the continuation of events, or if rumors should become more solid, it should emerge that there is much more behind the causes of the prevailing events than the valid narrative is trying to persuade people of at this time – so should the suspicion of an all-encompassing, intentional orchestration arise, according to which the annihilation of large segments of the population through the administration of pollutants was planned from the very beginning, decades ago, the occult powers of this world will have, through the initiated exposure of these machinations, to remove or sacrifice a shell from their apparatus of control, in order to accommodate a population even more outraged by the new scandals emerging over nano-robotics, 5G and heavy metals; turning to new investigators for the apparent discovery and documentation of this scandal, where much higher levels of power and people need to be revealed so that populations around the world can be brought back under control and receive satisfaction. This, then, will be the last hour of the false alternatives, who will take the lead – that is, be put in charge of a redemptive movement to proclaim the only valid and true truth to all other people – about the evil and satanic elites, the icy high finance and the vile man-eaters, who are the sole cause and most original address of all evil in the world.

This isolation of shells, on which new causes and more plausible occult directors can always be presented, will continue at worst until the occult powers of our world, will even have to present a religious savior figure to maintain or generate their power. However, the scenario just presented would only be a sequence of events that the ruling control system could initiate in the near future by means of its executive elites, lackeys and henchmen divided into different levels of knowledge. As a flexible modification to the sequence of events just described, it could be announced, for example, before or during a power outage, that a deadly pathogen is wreaking havoc all over the world, which would completely eliminate the potential for riots among the population as a result of the blackout; so that everyone would remain quietly and humbly at home because of an impending or horrible death that is visible everywhere.

In this way, people would be convinced that they can survive ongoing catastrophes only by a persevering caution to stay at home, even though, because of the hidden nano-functional causes of that death, people will die in large numbers at home as well. Moreover, because of the ongoing power outage, suspicions that microwaves from a 5G network may be responsible for people's deaths are completely set aside, simply because there is no more power for mobile phone antennas. But can one really be sure that then a pathogen or perhaps something else entirely is behind the horrific deaths of people? That smartphones and cell phones have been the subject of a special program in recent years to mute during a particular crisis and to perform a special service that will continue even if the battery is completely dead.

Regardless of whether you use a smartphone or an older cell phone, regardless of whether you use 2G, 3G, or 4G. In the event of a power outage with an alleged deadly pathogenic germ circulating would the ever-reported but then extinguished 5G microwaves just be an alibi for a perfect crime cover-up? Such a sequence of events as presented would lead to a maximum destruction of the world economy and an equally maximum destruction of humanity, of human lives, with the particular advantage for the occult powers of this planet to be able to retain their longtime political lackeys, elites and minions without risking the dangers of a serious loss of dominance and control during the replacement of their powers.

Such a process would also save the covert powers from having to use many of their resources for normative manipulation, which can later be used for the still imminent necessary processes of transformation into a new world order that will be combined with other manipulative resources in a targeted and mutually complementary way. Manipulative resources, such as a UFO invasion, an asteroid impact, an even more massive thermonuclear attack or more of the two short nuclear wars already planned between the U.S. and Russia or the supposed return of Jesus as a perfect man, flawless in his mythical representation. In the light of these many possible variations in the course of events, through which the occult powers of this world must achieve their goals, one thing above all must be clear to you viewers: Do not rely on violence in all these tense situations.

Because that is precisely where the occult powers of this planet want to take you, inciting faux-oppositional forces, lackeys and paid by the rebels, to implement repressive measures against citizens all over the world, only to turn it into a convincing fake revolution, but through which the renewed and final gagging of humanity. Therefore, in the coming years, be especially careful not to join mere rebels, political ideologies, saviors or fake revolutions, they are simply means and methods to distract people from their last chances to achieve freedom and lead them away. Therefore, as soon as a return to normalcy after chaos is proclaimed, passivity must be aimed for. For a longer period of time, begin to relax properly at home from work, to care, along with many others, quietly.

Because only this will help you – after all, everything you have been told or are still being told by new or old politicians, pundits and officials, dependent and seemingly independent scientists, false alternates and many, supposedly original fully sovereign advocates of a better world, serves in the long run only the transformation into a new order for which you, dear viewers, must be decimated, so that in the coming centuries, with as few people as possible and with similar socialization, the transformation of the human species into an almost soulless quantum-digital entity can take place without great difficulty. Irreversibly transforming analog biological humanity into a digitally existing transhumanist species. For this reason, it is good to be on guard, to recognize the methods and tools that will be used for the variance of upcoming sequence events – no matter whether we are talking about an induced war, an accident of civilization or alleged pathogenic germs, or whether the mortality rate of medically pretreated people begins to increase enormously in the long or short term without a major cause.

Or when political and spiritual saviors or the discovery of bestial scandals and cover-ups in history, politics, religion, intelligence services and elites are supposed to channel and vent people's anger, to generate satisfaction in them, to arouse new hope and confidence in newly installed leaders and puppets. Think diversely, be suspicious, recognize and understand the distraction and diversion tactics of the control mechanism, and always keep in mind the long-term plans of the digital club and aristocracy for decimation and biological digitization. Remember, and do not be misled, that all will be well, especially when an individual or an alliance of people is placed at the top to lead or direct people.

As in the last video, Alexander Laurent, by anticipating the possible courses of events and announcing the plans for destruction already in place, intends to raise awareness among the people to cause a dissolution or postponement of the processes planned by the hidden powers of this world. The interviews with Mr. Laurent, and also all the other videos on our channels, serve to make visible and transparent the strategies and backgrounds of those hidden powers, as well as their manipulation mechanisms, in order to intentionally provoke a circumvention and a lasting change in the destiny prepared for our species through these publications. Presentation and dissemination of our interviews through alternative media at the end of this video, something in our favor.

As interested viewers and connoisseurs of our interview publications, you may have been surprised over the past months and years to have heard little or nothing about the interviews with Mr. Laurent in the celebrated alternative media, and that the few known alternative media, when they have reported on the Laurent interviews, have merely covered secondary issues or perversely mixed or reworked their own narratives about elites and esoteric religious myths with the interview topics. At the same time, the quintessence of the interviews has rarely, if ever, been addressed – namely, that everything that happens on earth and will happen again in the future is a spectacle, a staging, in which every area, without exception, is controlled by lackeys. In this behavior, it was particularly noted that the paid lackeys and fake-truthers always described to their audience the topics and contents of the interviews with Mr. Laurent as incomprehensible and/or difficult to understand. Under these circumstances, the alternative media creators also took charge of the interpretation or reinterpretation of the interviews to their viewers;

Rambling and/or wholly inappropriate readings were recommended, supplemented and combined with all kinds of distracting concepts for a supposedly better understanding of the interviews. Under these circumstances, it is not surprising that hardly any of those interpreters ever spoke more forcefully about the novel "The Revelation of God – A Revelation." As for the alternative media that never mentioned the novel in connection with Mr. Laurent and the interviews, the prophecies contained in the novel that are already fulfilled were not mentioned. The prophecies contained in the novel (already fulfilled), which were broken down in an accompanying blog by Mr. Laurent; precise world-historical predictions, which came true in the years 2012 to 2014. None of the lackeys in charge wondered and/or his audience what these prophecies meant, where these predictions came from, how they might arise, and what conclusions were to be drawn from them.

In order to divert attention from the predictions hidden in the novel, and especially from the even clearer revelations of the interviews – in order to successfully neutralize some secrets that had never been revealed before – there had to be an adaptation of the leaked contents from the interviews, in which the viewers had to be irritated and diverted as much as possible through reinterpretations and false conclusions, so as to misunderstand the leaked contents, forget them and/or classify them as nonsense – the classic neutralization measure, according to the combat statutes of the ancient tradition of secret lodges.

To best disguise this procedure, the leaked contents of the interviews were interpreted in different ways by individual manipulators, sometimes transferred to old esoteric views on extraterrestrial connections, sometimes in the form of thoughts on artificial intelligence or hyperdimensional quantum consciousness, always combined with anecdotes and reports of well-known mystics and world experts from fake-alternative media, incorporated against the background of analysis contrasting politics of materialism and the infinitely presented narrative of a responsible and dominant power elite. Based on this adaptation of the interviews, the old narratives dispersed by false-alternatives could be stabilized again and the events coming our way, which will consist of chaos and destruction, could be attributed once again to the autarkic plan of so-called high finance; that the elites, warmongers and political profiteers are human beasts who want to satisfy their lust to kill and implement the control and subjugation of people out of pure greed for power, money and luxury. Which is true, of course, but from another point of view it is nothing but a fraudulent pretext and distraction to hide the real intentions and the hidden rulers behind this action. The sensitive issues in the interviews with Mr. Laurent went completely unheard, for example, the fact that Mr. Laurent mentioned that all prophets, seers and prophetesses of the near and distant past were installed or manipulated individuals, and that even any anonymous form of prophecy or transmitted text was subject to manipulation, has been almost completely ignored.

The warning of a false religious savior created for this apocalypse, mentioned by Mr. Laurent, was not even addressed. The prophecies of the dawn of time are used solely for the purpose – about the realization and experience of a predicted religious-spiritual apocalyptic destiny, to help the hidden and truly immortal powers of this world to once again secure their dominance and spiritual control over us humans in the age to come. And the danger for human beings of being transferred to an eternal quantum-digital transhumanist existential hell in the centuries to come has sometimes been consoled with esoterically constructed castles in the air-that every human being is free to choose between the so-called "collective states of light in eternal superhuman existence of the cosmos" – that is, the digital club – or ascension into higher dimensions. Whichever dimension is intended.

Not a word about this from those esotericists who supposedly handled the interviews, that the existence of all of us, in purely physical terms, is an autonomous, three-level, seven-dimensional construct from which no one can escape simply by a desired and fantasized ascent, even dead. Mr. Laurent allowed these reinterpretations and irritations of his opponents; as you may recall, he even invited his opponents in his interviews to carry out these attacks disguised as interview support, ultimately in order to be able to demonstrate live to you, dear viewers, the workings of these powers – their methods of decomposition and adaptation through trolls, agents and media channel operators, by which the occult powers of this world are able to neutralize any form of actual cognition in another matter or in a new spiritual understanding towards human beings, respectively.

As a viewer, realize that our earthly life contains far more shocking secrets than the mundane sciences have so far described, that earthly philosophy has tried to fathom, or that the laughing-stocks and man-catchers of the alternative media with all kinds of epistemologies and mental attitudes inspired by secret societies have too often tried to keep away from it. That there are hidden guidelines for us human beings, even existential goals that almost no one can reconcile with the maxims of guidance and action of fake alternative media, governments, celebrities or innovative people, or even with the spirit of the times currently imposed by technology and other ideas that seem rather harmless. On the purely material plane of its existence, humanity is dealing with extraterrestrial powers beyond our imagination.

These beings are so bizarre and cunning, that they reduce our earthly definitions of good and evil to absurdity. Incredibly intelligent, cunning and cold-hearted, with a philosophical outlook that sanctifies any means that will ensure their quantum-digital functioning, while trying to impose the same mode of digital existence on other intelligent life forms. For you viewers, the power of this intergalactic action of a species club means, first and foremost, becoming aware of the fact that all the chaos that will henceforth occur on our earth – with all the actors, institutions, elements, situations, relationships and definitions – is a set-up, directed and will be a rigged and managed game. None of it will be authentic or random. Nothing.

Since the hidden powers of this world cannot afford to make it look like a sham, it will be important to recognize and name their variations, the possibilities for evasion and improvisation. Therefore, one must always ask and examine what these powers are actually trying to achieve with certain activities, who they want to portray as the bogeyman and culprit, what they want to achieve with this extravagance – what are the intentions behind specific events, situations and behaviors. Observe and understand the cunning methods and layered approaches these powers use to achieve their goals. Above all, don't let them tell you fairy tales through the micro-manipulative elements of control and influence – that is, through false alternatives – that through actions such as demonstrations, walks, car processions, five-minute work stoppages, promoting a rap song or hanging a towel out the window, real resistance would be achieved; that successes have been achieved and/or will be achieved.

You were and are dealing with human-catchers, not heroes or friends. Human-catchers who support the implementation of the transhumanist agenda with an elaborate system of diversion and deflection; a control system to keep potentially rebellious humans at bay, so that the respective steps for the decimation of humanity can be initiated and implemented without serious interruptions or accidents. So that in the future spiritual, cultural and technical synchronization can take place on a decimated humanity, that absolute control will be realized, by which in the following centuries, the final transformation of humanity into a quantum digital species will finally be completed. As an individual human being, do not remain inactive or even indifferent to this information about the destiny initiated for humanity.

Do not ignore it because it apparently would not affect yourself but only your descendants – because every conscious-intelligent living being with a quantum signature of complexly interwoven consciousness, the self of consciousness, the soul, is always necessarily reborn into the same species in a permanent cycle. Each returns, reintegrated into matter; in a state, place and time, as dictated by its quantum entanglements created first in matter. Unfortunately, current terrestrial quantum research into the patterns of action and reintegration of consciousness into matter, as well as into the processes of perception of individual ego-consciousness, has so far failed to achieve deeper theoretical insights, nor has it found rudimentary methods on the verifiability of the effects of consciousness, let alone opened up minimal structural access to the deeper realms of consciousness; of free will, by which humanity could already intuitively recognize what lies behind the conscious IO – what higher power generates free will decoupled from instincts and drives in the material world.

A truly free, liberating path for any conscious-intelligent species. Therefore, if humanity will not take this liberating path and if it will do nothing against the club-initiated digital mutilation of its consciousness – at rebirth awaits every human being transhumanism, a quantum-digital eternity – a digital hell of immortality in which quantum-digital individuals parasitically feed on the quanta of consciousness of other living beings. Forced and forever bound to this digital state, lest they be thrown into a much deeper and eternal abyss and end up as a one-dimensional, unconscious, perpetually tormented being. These meager prospects are not meant to deprive you, dear viewers, of courage or perspective, quite the contrary. If you really want to change things, however, you must not close your mind to the evidence of the facts.

The first thing you must understand is that the alternative media as a whole is not a benign, honest or truthful resistance. Only when you have demonstrated to have internalized this concept you can begin to change something. Because the department of corporate-controlled alternative media are also the Achilles' heel of the occult powers on this planet. All their alternative representations, stories and solutions to our world's problems are reproductions supported by redesigned lies; narratives to create the new order. No matter what they try to make you believe, no heavenly savior or worldly hero will come; certainly no well-meaning extraterrestrials, and there are no beings of light or shining, loving angels waiting for you in the afterlife. What will be staged as a magical reversal of events, as the beginning of the "golden age," will not be a supersensible, prophesied event, a supernatural redemption from a bad world to a good world – because there has never been a real, natural "dark age".

We have never been in one of these mythic-allegorical ages, but we have remained for centuries in a controlled state of immured myths, imaginative thoughts and self-deceptions; A state in which we should remain. All prophecies of a "golden age" are fictional, which means, by implication, that without your personal intervention, diligence and free will, freedom or a positive natural development for mankind can never prevail; not with propagandistic manifestations, esoteric wishes coming true, dream castles, and certainly not with the endless chatter and outrageous entertainment of the false alternative media. Our opponents have made it now; they have always comforted and diverted people, making them wait in vain for salvation and change. With this contribution we do not want to take away your conviction or hope of resistance through alternative media.

But be honest with yourself, because of course, all of our opponents have been in these circles from the beginning of the birth of the alternative media. They were present there all along and co-founded it from the beginning. It would be foolish to believe that these forces did not establish themselves then, were never present or, by all their means of influence, were not always absolutely dominant in this scene and did not sabotage it from the beginning. For the tragedy that lies ahead, those who have been programmed by the alternative and mainstream media will act accordingly; they will go on a rampage, without any sense of guilt or decency. And that is where they want you all to be, for the first stage of the chaos that awaits us. When the false prophecies of all the numerous seers, soothsayers and manipulated prophets begin to come true, the lackeys of the unrevealed secret lodges will want to lead the enraged people, to present themselves as fighters in front of them, leaders, truth-tellers and heroes – in a fake revolution.

Therefore, never let anyone lead you, no matter how established, endearing, sympathetic and trustworthy these people seem, no matter how favorably or convincingly they have entered your spheres of influence. It is because of this superiority that they have repeatedly tried to convince you that something is already moving, but in reality they run you in circles. Because there is no resistance, there never was. You, dear viewers are the resistance, you will have to be the resistance, only you can do it, only you can realize it. All you have seen are frauds, illusions of a simulation of resistance. These people were not real, they did not want to help you or save you. You have to do it yourselves.

As you may have noticed, two parts of our interview videos were removed from YouTube in September 2021 due to alleged depictions of violence. Since we cannot rule out similar ambitious measures being taken against our interviews in the future, we would like to emphasize at this point that you can always download any part of the interview series – regardless of whether it is still on YouTube or not – as video files in the descriptions of all still-existing interview videos. In addition, you will find our coverage channels on Telegram. Viewers' questions about the interviews, crisis preparedness tips, and in our main Telegram Channel for more articles and information. To do so, click on the links in the description below this video. (Insert image in video: Showing recorded manipulations of click count).

Furthermore, we, as the operators of the YouTube channel "Eurasia Couple," obviously agree with YouTube that YouTube would not manipulate our channel and the videos in it through so-called shadow-banning or an algorithm adjustment, that YouTube would even make it difficult to like or share our titles, or that it would also detract from the relevance of the interviews through a manipulation of daily click counts and try to further reduce the number of subscribers. It goes without saying that YouTube, in all its procedures, algorithms and influences, complies with all legal requirements and its own imposed policies and guidelines. YouTube of course absolutely neither favors nor disadvantages anyone.

However, dear viewers, if you find it useful to forward our channel content and do not want to rely solely on YouTube's good and reliable forwarding functions, you can and should also forward manually, on channels, in forums, chats and comments. We would like to sincerely thank our viewers for their help and support of our channel content, and we hope that as many people as possible will develop constructive ideas for dealing with the coming disasters and prevailing circumstances in order to be able to sustainably oppose the occult powers in the future. Thank you very much for watching and see you next video, warm regards from Alexander Laurent and Eurasia Couple. Thank you for your attention
