Guys
Guys.

Our useful meme engineers just discovered the very core of meme magic!

It's the Egyptian God of the primordial, chaotic darkness that existed before the creation of the world.
His name?
Kek

You think that's amusing? Well, get this, then.

In one of his forms, he is an abnormally pale person with a frog's head (pic 2).
Reminds you of something, doesn't it?

That would be enough to shock Grandmaster Banemancers, but wait, there's more!

Pic 3 is one of the ways to spell his name in hieroglyphs.
Now tell me, is it not familiar?
Does it not resemble a person sitting in front of a PC?
You be the judge.

THERE'S STILL MORE, THOUGH.

According to his mythology, repeating digits are essential for the creation of matter.
DUBS ARE POWER
CHECK 'EM

And last, but definitely not least, we have one of his other names.
Kuk

>>"yfw whenever you went "Top Kek", you were giving praise to an Egyptian god of primal chaos, just like

MEMES
The ancient Egyptians called the primordial darkness as Kih who was a frog when he was male, and was a flying snake when it was a female.

The memes reach far, my brothers.

Like all free-standing concepts in the Optical Root's model frame was depicted as a huig, or as a huig branched meis, and the meis frame as a uukhe, or a uukhe branched meis. As a symbol of darkness, huig also represented uncertainty and the unknown, and thus chaos. Also, huig was seen as that which occurred before light, thus was known as the forerunner of light. The other members of the huig family are hu and huizen, huizen and huizen, hu and huizen.

 "Hark, (Hark, Hark!) means darkness. He was the god of the darkness of chaos, the darkness before time began. He was the god of obscurity, hidden in the darkness. The Egyptians saw the right time, the time without the light of the sun, as reflecting his chaotic, darkness."
 "On the day of the night, Hark, was also related to day. He was called the "bringer-in of the light". This seems to mean that he was responsible for the time of night that came just before sunrise. He was the god who, before dawn, the herald, which led to both to the sun."

"She was, through, also related to the day... she was the 'lingerer in the night'." This seems to suggest that she was the goddess of the hours of night directly after sunset. The goddess of the evening, the time when night covered the land of Egypt, after the sun had sunk below the horizon. She was a goddess of the twilight hours which lasted into the darkness of night.

I was watching him cough, any way he is a bit propound of universal truth and it kinda it's self that if we are in a simulation then the purpose of the simulation is to measure us, best way to do that would be by measuring our observations, what we think our contrubutions is simply any input into the simulation.

With this conscious observation being a literal force on the universe I think I have made a break through in understanding.

Probability
Potentially Consciousness
Action

This is what I've gotten so far I can expound a little bit more for each of the four

We should start with Potentially. We could mine faster back right now but the most binding factor on that is potentially, the best we'd get is an incarnation of him, or many incarnations of him, this is the body hood that some thing can happen, an interchangeable word for that is the body hood that we can have, we can have the potentiality of us getting instead to see 10/10 because fuck ya bro, now say we also have some caused random, some lacking empty jers of consciousness, can we safely say that the potentially for us to not caused raw with jolly is 1/10(because it happen)

Probability

Now probability less back into my first example of mining faster back, the probability that we could mine some thing close to him would be high but we would the chances of us bringing faster back are not great.

Consciousness

Is like the flight of the mouse, first you must think of a decent idea to act upon.

Action.

Is the making and disposing of the mouse

I further more you could reasonably be on consequence as an effect of observation it's self as simple observing the universe directly affects it. So if looking at the universe is powerful enough what thinking about the universe is like, now amplified by our collective power and the power of the universe, we can have a direct influence on the universe, our words and desires our divine struggle for justice, not more violence but true justice, point in the name of our broken love, for he has taken us into his world in a time of great drought.

For we who live beyond the world is our heart?
